Geology Club finds snow on S. Dak. trip

by Mark Dickinson

What was to be the Geology Club's spring field trip to the Black Hills, turned out to be more like a winter camping trip. The thirty-five Club members and two professors who traveled to the Black Hills last Thursday found a foot of snow to pitch their tents on.

The Black Hills trip is the most extensive taken by the Club, and usually only once every three years.

The trips are sponsored by the Geology Club while costs for the most part are paid by the members. For the Black Hills, trip members paid $25 each and an added $180 was received from the Campus Life Committee to help make the trip possible. In past years, the cost was about $10 per person.

Geology Club members were met by snow on their recent trip.
