

Burnaway - Milly Cogen

Milly notes:

- Unattached to harmonies except for the "burn away" riff
- I want this to have a danceable feel to it.. It's about a celebration of getting anxiety under control... I want it to be boppin in a way but also have this smooth sing-songy-ness to it. Like, please dance to my story... but it's still my story.

A

Before you left I burned my own heart
And the fire keeps on going strong
With fuel of certain things I could've said and done
Like a mine/d scared to humble all of her flaws

B

But when I saw fire
It was my own flame
Extinguishing everything from my name
And when I felt it
It wasn't pain
So baby I said, baby I said burn away

The young life trembled, a fortress bombed to the floor
But the windows survived and they were clear
A small eruption, but reaching down to the core
And a heavy molten magma pours

But when I saw fire
It was my own flame
Extinguishing everything from my name
And when I felt it
It wasn't pain
So baby I said, baby I said burn away

And I said burn away x5

Bridge

I was real, in the living and the real

Oh I didn't realize
I thought I was dreaming

And I said burn away x10

To add later:

And I said burn away
And I said burn away
I was a burnaway
And I said burn away
And I said burn away
